his era with works that combined fine lines and psychological depth. This portrait of a woman is striking for the profound sadness it exudes. The artist, known for his ability to capture the soul of his models, was able to convey a palpable melancholy through the gaze, the posture and the play of light and shadow. The delicate features, the choice of colors and the facial expression invite the viewer to introspection, as if the painting carried within it the weight of an era marked by uncertainty and war.
