Acrylic on marble powder titled "Self-analysis"
Signature at the bottom
Luigi Castiglioni (1936-2003) was an Italian painter, illustrator and decorator who became a French citizen. He is best known for his work in the fields of fashion illustration, advertising, theater, as well as for his dreamlike and symbolist paintings. His style is characterized by great graphic finesse, subtle colors, and an often poetic and phantasmagorical universe. He is often associated with a surrealist universe, sometimes close to Magritte. His works combine elements of nature and stylized human figures.
