Description

Superb and very richly carved buffet forming a library composed of old woodwork elements dating from the 18th century. The facade is carved with pilasters with cherubs and fruit falls and a multitude of interlacing acanthus leaves, rosettes and spandrels. Very deep and bold carving adding a theatrical effect to the whole. It opens with a door which is held thanks to an acanthus leaf which serves as a latch. A shelf at the bottom and another in the open part (recent shelf). The sides receive shelves with a surprising riveted brass crosspiece. Totally atypical piece of furniture which will give a crazy charm to your interior. The reassembly is old with very beautiful elements from the end of the 17th or beginning of the 18th century.
