Description

"Constantia" Art Nouveau Brooch-Pendant
This Art Nouveau brooch-pendant was crafted in 18k yellow gold and 850 platinum. It features a floral motif adorned with rose-cut diamonds, punctuated by round old-cut diamonds. At its centre sits a white cultured pearl, while a detachable drop formed by a cascade of three old-cut diamonds adds movement and brilliance. A removable pin and two discreet rings allow it to be effortlessly converted into a pendant. A creation from around 1910, quintessentially Art Nouveau in aesthetic. Specifications: Dimensions: 3.7 × 3.9 cm Pearl diameter: 4.1 mm Stones: cultured pearl, old-cut diamonds and rose-cut diamonds Total weight of principal diamonds: approx. 0.80 ct (including 0.30 ct for the drop diamond) Weight:

condition, typical of the early 20th century.The central pearl was likely replaced; pierced through, it probably originated from an antique necklace, with the holes later filled with care.The jewel features charming millegrain settings and a naturalistic composition typical of the Art Nouveau period -- a historic piece where delicate craftsmanship takes precedence over the size of the stones.Reference: 212
