Description

Hydra Lamp by Jean Roger A beautiful decor imitating straw marquetry, a harmonious baluster shape and a soft bottle green color make this beautiful earthenware lamp by Jean Roger as much a source of warm light as a decorative element with a classic, elegant and colorful line. Large hand-painted earthenware baluster lamp from the house of Jean Roger, signed on and under the foot. The house of Jean Roger, Place des Vosges in Paris, has been a favorite address for ceramic lovers since the 1950s and has counted among its regular customers Christian Dior, Jackie Kennedy, Chanel and Jean Royère. It was Jean Roger's son, Jean-Jacques, who at the end of the 1960s created a trompe l'oeil lacquer technique painted on earthenware. He became a specialist in painted decoration on
