Description

This pair of decorative wall lights was made in Italy in the 1920s. The tall, narrow plates have arched tops with a scalloped edge. The original glass pieces have an etched design, incorporating a neoclassical building and a fan motif at the top. One of the mirrors has significant ageing and dark spots and a foggy appearance, common on antique mirrors. See our photos to see this detail. Each wall light has two arms extending from the base, supporting candlesticks. We have had these wall lights rewired for the UK; they can easily be adapted for any destination; please contact us for more information. These lights have a beautiful reddish-brown patina finish. Perfect for a traditional or period interior, particularly as accent lighting in a hallway, dining room or above a fireplace. Quality antique Italian design.
