Description

This carved and gilded wooden pareclose mirror is an exceptional piece, a testament to 17th-century craftsmanship. Its imposing frame, richly adorned with Baroque motifs, immediately captures the attention with its elegant curves and meticulously chiseled details. The gilding, although bearing the discreet marks of time, retains a warm glow that reveals all the nobility of its origin. The old, authentic and preserved patina adds historical depth to this object, giving it a unique soul. On the back, the mirror is parqueted, a technique typical of the period that reinforces its structure and attests to its authenticity. This particularity is a guarantee of quality and durability, proving that each element has been designed to last for centuries. Despite its venerable age, this mirror is in very good overall
