Description

Presented in a striking vertical format and likely executed in mixed media--oil or acrylic with graphite or ink--on canvas, this work belongs to the realm of geometric abstraction with a distinctly mechanical character. Its dynamic composition centers on two circular forms reminiscent of gears or turbines, linked by intricate black lines evoking scaffolding and cables. The color palette contrasts deep cobalt blue with ochre, rust, and yellow tones, suggesting metal and machinery against an industrial sky. Energetic brushwork and layered transparencies create a texture of controlled complexity, blending structure with expressive motion. The result is a compelling vision of an industrial machine, at once monumental and poetic, embodying the spirit of 20th-century
