Description

This small mahogany lady's desk, dating from the second half of the 19th century during the Napoleon III era, is an elegant piece designed with great attention to detail. The curved top is covered in new black leather with a gilded vignette, surrounded by a ribbed ingot mold that emphasizes its contour. Just below, a large central drawer decorated with foliate rods and brass marquetry representing plant scrolls, opens with an ornate key and a functional lock. The upper part of the desk is surmounted by a small beveled mirror, topped with a shelf with an openwork gallery. On each side, two small drawers with gilt bronze handles in the shape of acanthus leaves complete the ensemble. They are also topped with openwork galleries. Brass fillets and decorative friezes emphasize the contours of the mirror and
