Description

Landscape with flowering bush at the lake was created in the early 20th century in the style of the famous French painter and printmaker Louis Valtat (French 1869-1952), associated with the Fauvist movement ("wild beasts", so named for their wild use of color), with whom they first exhibited in 1905 at the Salon d'Automne. He is recognized as a key figure in the stylistic transition from Monet to Matisse.
