Description

French School, second half of the 19th century, follower of Oudry
Blue Macaw on a Branch
Oil on canvas
73 x 60 cm without frame
This painting depicts a blue macaw perched on a branch amidst tropical foliage, within a trompe-l'oeil medallion. Heir to the 18th-century naturalist tradition, the artist combines scientific precision with decorative elegance. The bird, captured in an expressive pose, seems to emerge from a window onto exotic nature. This work reflects the 19th-century taste for animal studies and ornamental motifs inspired by distant travels.
