Description

COD 01092 A magnificent Flemish painting from the first half of the 17th century. This painting oil on canvas depicts a splendid landscape with figures, a lively genre scene of a Dutch village. A crowd of peasants engage in dancing, conversation, and daily chores, while a windmill dominates the composition in the background. The painting combines narrative finesse and decorative appeal, offering a fascinating glimpse of Northern European folk life. The festive atmosphere, narrative density, and attention to detail immediately evoke the 17th-century Flemish tradition. The painting features an initials at the bottom left (T.D.F. and a date that is not fully legible, likely an acronym for Teniers David fecit), attributed to David Teniers the Younger (1610-1690). A master of depicting folk life, he elevated genre painting to a refined narrative form, capable of combining realistic observation with a taste for theatricality. (This artwork is currently not accompanied by an expert opinion, but it can be requested upon payment of the relevant additional costs.)A painting of remarkable pictorial quality and monumental size, ideal for a large classical or modern reception room. The spectacular 19th-century wood and plaster frame is beautifully decorated, with some signs of aging. The painting has already been restored with re-lining, replacement of the stretcher, and repainting in small areas, but is in overall good condition.
