Description

This 18th century buffet is crafted from a mix of fruitwoods, namely walnut and cherry (the dominant wood) as well as chestnut. It is a tall, stepped-back piece of furniture. The lower section consists of three front doors and is equipped with a fixed shelf with a height of 89 cm. The upper section, with a height of 147 cm, also features three doors and has several shelves. The locks are original, of the skeleton key type. The piece has an old patina. Originating from a bourgeois home kitchen, this model is uncommon on the market. A delivery quote can be provided upon request.
