Description

Elegant pair of small oil paintings on panel, signed Frattini, a Venetian painter active in the first half of the 20th century, known for his delicate figure scenes and luminous landscapes. Both works, of identical format, depict female figures in natural and rural settings, rendered with loose, vibrant brushstrokes that convey a pleasant sense of immediacy and freshness. The artist's attention to light and color reflects the refined sensibility of the Venetian school of the early 20th century. Executed in oil on panel (dimensions 12 × 22 cm), the paintings are presented in later silvered wooden frames dating from the 1970s (overall dimensions 31 × 41 cm). The panels are in good condition, with light signs of age and a fine, even patina; the frames show minor wear consistent with age. A
