Description

A remarkable 17th-century tapestry fragment, presented in a frame, depicting the bust of an emperor. This exceptional piece preserves part of a larger original tapestry and bears the signature "Franchois van den Hecke," a name associated with the prestigious Flemish textile tradition. Rich in color and texture, the textile testifies to the refinement and artistic sophistication characteristic of Flemish workshops during the Baroque period. Mounted and presented as a framed decorative panel, it is a rare and historically significant example of 17th-century tapestry art, combining textile mastery with classical iconography. 87x64 cm
