Description

An exceptional German portable sundial, finely engraved and made of gilt brass, signed "J. Vogler," and preserved in its original case. Made in the 18th century, this exquisite instrument testifies to German precision and scientific expertise, likely originating from one of the greatest instrument-making centers such as Nuremberg. The piece features detailed engraving, an elegant design, and high-quality gilding, illustrating the perfect balance between scientific functionality and decorative refinement. Dimensions: 6 × 6 × 1 cm. A rare and highly sought-after 18th-century scientific instrument, remarkable for its signature, original case, and excellent condition--a true gem for collectors of antique horological and navigational instruments.
