Description

Derby porcelain, Duesbury Derby, English porcelain, Dresden Shepherds, 18th century figures, pastoral Rococo, Derby factory, Georgian antiques, collectible Derby, porcelain pair, shepherd and lamb, shepherdess figurine

A rare and important pair of early Derby porcelain figures depicting a shepherd with dog and shepherdess with lamb, made around 1760 by William Duesbury & Co. The figures capture the charm of mid-18th-century Rococo taste, reinterpreting Kändler's continental designs into a softer, distinctly English style.

Each stands on a pierced rococo base with floral borage and gilt detailing. The shepherd holds a basket of flowers beside his hound; the shepherdess gathers blossoms in her apron and holds a posy with a lamb at her feet.
