Description

A charming Art Deco period lamp, circa 1925-1935, depicting a boy tenderly kissing a young girl.

The figures are finely crafted in silvered bronze with gilt accents, mounted on an elegant combination of green and white onyx, crowned by a translucent onyx semicircular panel that diffuses a warm and atmospheric light.

This poetic composition captures the innocence and emotion typical of Art Deco sculpture.

The metalwork demonstrates refined craftsmanship, with delicate chased and engraved details on the children's garments.

The lamp is set upon a polished marble base, providing both harmony and solidity.

Its subtle lighting effect recalls the French decorative lamps of the 1920s-1930s, in the manner of Max Le Verrier, Uriano or Limousin.

A minor crack in the onyx near the reclining boy is noted, without affecting the overall beauty or stability of the piece.

An elegant and uncommon model, ideal for collectors and lovers of period décor.
