Description

Large display cabinet or bookcase. Oak frame. Poplar back. 2 x 8 antique panes (bubbles, warps, etc.), 4 of which are broken. These will be replaced before sale. 2 x 5 shelves in pine, poplar, oak, and elm (back then, they made do with what they had!). This is likely an old wardrobe converted into a display cabinet or bookcase. The ornamentation and motifs appear to have been added during this conversion. Lock and key are functional. The left door is held open by a spring-loaded blade that is unlocked by passing your hand through a hole carved into the central partition. Not very academic, but original! Dimensions: total width = 156 cm; total height =
