Description

Art Deco Platinum Brooch Set with Old-Cut Diamonds - Circa 1920. A superb Art Deco platinum brooch, with a geometric and openwork design typical of the 1920s, set with remarkably brilliant old-cut diamonds. Its rigorous, symmetrical, and luxuriously pavé-set architecture fully illustrates the jewelry refinement of the Art Deco period. The central diamond, weighing 1.70 carats, is of exceptional quality, estimated between VVS2 and VS1, color F-G--rare for this type of brooch, where the main stone is often of more modest clarity. It is flanked by two diamonds of 0.50 carats each (SI1-SI2, color G-H), and then by a substantial pavé of old-cut diamonds that animates the rectangular motif with highly graphic plays of light. A workshop piece from the 1920s, unrestored,
