Description

Late 19th Century English Drop-Leaf Table. This charming English drop-leaf table, dating from the late 19th century, is in the Jacobean Revival style. It rests on magnificent twisted legs, connected by an H-shaped stretcher ensuring perfect stability. The two hinged leaves allow the surface area to be adjusted according to its use--side table, dining table, or console. Made of oak, it displays a beautiful antique patina and meticulous joinery. A typically British model, elegant and functional. Open: 121.5 cm
