Description

A rare Louis XVI commode in natural waxed wood, concave in its upper section. It rests on four tapered legs. All four uprights are fluted and curved at the top. The front features four drawers in three rows; the top row has two drawers, also curved and separated by a fluted divider. All drawer fronts are finished with a flat band and adorned with ring-shaped pulls. Three of the four drawers have locks, all of which are functional. Only two keys are provided, as one locks the two top drawers. The keys are original. Our drawers slide perfectly. The sides of our chest of drawers are divided into three flat-edged panels, the top one being curved. It is topped with a solid wood slab adorned with a molding around its edge. Note a slight warp on the slab, some traces of woodworm, and minor wear at two keyholes (see
