Description

An atypical and rare office chair, a model inspired by Maison Jansen in the 1970s, this striking piece features a wide, deep, thick cushioned seat, a high caned back, and webbing armrests suspended from patinated bronze ornaments. These armrests are further enhanced by steel brackets connecting the solid, turned arms, making this so-called "officer's" chair a comfortable and quintessentially bivouac-style chair. The folding "bamboo" frame rests on a beautifully sculpted, honey-colored beechwood base with arched legs that realistically resemble a sculpture. This generously sized and decorative chair is very stable, sturdy, and in good condition, offering exceptional comfort with a beautiful seat and a supple, comfortable backrest. I worked for this prestigious house on Rue Royale in Paris
