Giuseppe Zais (Forno di Canale 1709 - Treviso 1781) was one of the most famous Venetian landscape painters, known for his depictions of bucolic scenes featuring stylized figures of shepherds, flocks, and washerwomen set in an idyllic rural landscape inspired by the Venetian countryside. He trained in Venice, observing the works of his illustrious predecessor Marco Ricci, and was a contemporary of Francesco Zuccarelli, from whom he drew the grace he achieved in his most refined works. Zais's style was distinguished
