Description

This stunning design table in rosewood from the 1980s, model T5, signed Tito Agnoli for Bonacina, perfectly balances elegance, function, and innovation. In excellent general condition, it measures 180 x 45 (90) x h75 cm. Its modular top and refined lines make it, without a doubt, a centerpiece that can capture attention in any interior. However, what stands out the most is the harmony between the warm tone of rosewood and the clean geometry typical of Italian design from the 1980s.

Italian Design: Form, Material, and Research
The T5 table clearly shows how Italian design can unite beauty and practicality. Moreover, the use of rosewood -- a noble and enduring wood -- ensures lasting strength. Despite its minimalist structure, it conveys a sense of authentic craftsmanship. Therefore, it easily fits both in contemporary spaces and in more classic interiors, creating a fascinating visual dialogue. In short, it is a table conceived for those who appreciate the tangible beauty of true design.

Tito Agnoli and Bonacina: Two Names, One Legacy of Excellence
Tito Agnoli, Italian-Peruvian architect and designer, was one of the most refined creators of the twentieth century. Trained under Gio Ponti and Franco Albini, he always favored material quality and purity of proportions. Bonacina, the historic Lombard manufacturer, skillfully combined craftsmanship and experimentation, creating furniture that became icons of Italian design. Consequently, this table is not only a functional piece but also a part of design history.
