Description

Rare architectural door surround in alder/poplar wood, walnut-stained, crafted in central-northern Italy between the late 18th and early 19th century, during the Neoclassical / Louis XVI period. Originally built as an elegant door frame for a refined residence in the Tuscan-Emilian area, it features harmonious mouldings and typical architectural proportions of the period.

During the 19th century--likely in its second half--the surround was repurposed into a single-door cabinet, with added side panels, backboard and shelves. This historically coherent transformation gives the piece a unique decorative presence.
