Description

This elegant Biedermeier console table from the first half of the 19th century combines classic lines with exceptional craftsmanship. Its semi-circular top is made of solid cherry and cherry veneer, whose warm, vibrant grain is particularly enhanced by the light. The decorative cabinetwork clearly defines the form and creates an effective contrast - a typically elegant detail of the mature Biedermeier period. The table rests on delicately curved saber legs, which lend it an airy elegance. A central stretcher ensures stability and emphasizes the harmony of its silhouette. The table has been professionally restored and then hand-polished with shellac. This process reveals the full depth and luster of the cherry wood - a finish true to the original period. Thanks to its dimensions and elegance, this piece is perfectly
