Description

Circa 1960-1965, France. A polka-dot silk satin cocktail or formal dress from an unidentified atelier, dating from the 1960s. The background is a striking cream satin flocked with a randomly arranged black velvet polka dot plumetis. The fitted, sheath-style dress is sleeveless and features a deep plunging neckline held by thin black velvet straps. A matching sleeveless bolero jacket, with a high neckline, fastens at the back with a snap button. A matching belt ties at the waist, giving the bolero a slightly blouson effect. The dress has a side zipper and is unlined, revealing the hand-sewn details. The unlined bolero is weighted with small dots at the hem, ensuring a beautiful drape. Please note two unstitched darts in the back, a few minor scratches on the satin, two small repairs (less than
