Description

A superb oil on canvas depicting a typical Montmartre alleyway, enlivened by a magnificent play of light and dominated by the unmistakable silhouette of the Sacré-Coeur Basilica. This 19th-century work, inspired by the Napoleon III period, captures the bohemian and picturesque atmosphere of this famous Parisian neighborhood. The composition highlights the Montmartre architecture and the ascending perspective towards the basilica, offering a scene that is both vibrant and imbued with poetry. The signature is not visible, but the technique, patina, and subject matter lend this painting a true period charm.
