Description

A charming watercolor depicting a New England landscape in the United States. At the foot of a forested hill, a wide railroad bridge, characteristic of structures built in the late 19th century, is visible. To the right are several wooden houses and a white building. The bridge spans a river. The atmosphere is pastoral, typical of rural America in the early 20th century. The work is signed WH ROOS and dated 1904 in the lower right corner (barely visible in shadow). It is in very good condition. It is mounted under glass and mounted in a modern gray and bronze-stained wood frame. This is an elegant and highly decorative piece. The artwork can be viewed at the gallery (07240).
