Description

Brutalist sculptural sideboard, 1970s. A spectacular handcrafted piece with warm honey grain and a vibrant patina. The gouge-carved fronts and branch handles emphasize a very 70s organic spirit, somewhere between rustic brutalism and chalet style. The black hardware (exposed hinges and nails) adds rhythm to the front and reinforces its character. Functional, it offers three drawers in the frieze and four doors opening onto ample storage for dishes or linens. The irregular edges and "raw wood" uprights make it a unique and inviting piece, perfect for a country house, a chalet, or a contemporary interior seeking authenticity.
