Description

This finely painted faience plate from mid-18th-century Delft presents a refined Chinoiserie scene featuring a robed figure and a bird within a stylized garden, framed by pavilions, flowering shrubs, and scrolling borders. Executed in underglaze blue with overglaze enamels of iron-red, yellow, green, and aubergine, the palette imitates Japanese Imari ware yet displays the precision and symmetry typical of European craftsmanship. The central composition balances delicate linear brushwork with vibrant decorative elements around the rim, reflecting the fascination for Oriental motifs that swept through Europe during the Rococo era. The reverse bears a distinctive triple-leaf blue mark, associated with Delft workshops producing export wares inspired by Arita porcelain. This
