Description

These grand gilt-bronze candelabra majestically embody the elegance of the Renaissance style. They are distinguished by five candle arms, arranged around a central shaft, each adorned with finely sculpted scrolls, volutes, and foliage. These arms support chalices with delicately chiseled candle cups, demonstrating exquisite goldsmithing. The central candle holder, positioned at the top, is surmounted by a small, removable decorative stopper. The main shaft evokes the form of a richly crafted Medici vase, whose floral motifs and reliefs enhance the sculptural character of the piece. The entire ensemble rests on a base of deep red griotte marble, which contrasts magnificently with the gilt bronze. This base is itself supported by four finely cast bronze foliate feet, ensuring both
