Description

Magnificent contemporary flatware set by the renowned Ercuis company. It comprises a spoon, a dinner fork, and a dessert spoon. This model, called Insolent, was created in 2005 and is still sold by the company, which describes it as follows: "The Insolent flatware set is inspired by the Italian Renaissance, the golden age of gem setting in goldsmithing. Its brightly colored handle is adorned with a delicate silver grid featuring light and elegant arabesques. Using techniques reminiscent of jewelry making, the creation of this fine silverware piece requires meticulous care, great precision, and time-honored expertise. This unique and delicate flatware set creates a sophisticated and exclusive table setting." Each piece is hallmarked: Minerva 1st standard hallmark after 1973 for 925/°° silver
