Description

Venetian lantern in light blue blown glass, made in the first half of the 20th century. The structure is crafted in hand-shaped and folded iron, enriched with curved lines and decorative scrolls that hold the glass sections in place, following the tradition of early 20th-century Venetian lanterns. The glass shows the characteristic lagoon-blue tone, typical of Venetian hand-blown production. Measurements:- glass height: 30 cm- total height with hook: 34 cm- maximum diameter: 24 cm Condition: Glass intact and in excellent condition. The iron structure shows natural patina and light oxidation, consistent with age and contributing to the authenticity of the piece.
