

Dying Galatian In Serpentine Green Marble - After The Ancient

2 500 EUR

Period : 19th century

Condition : Bon état

Material : Marble

Width : 69 cm

Height : 37 cm

Depth : 30 cm

Description

Magnificent serpentine marble sculpture depicting the famous Dying Galatian, after Epigonus of Pergamon (3rd century BC). This Neoclassical piece, of remarkable quality, features powerful modeling and a natural patina that highlights the green hues of the marble. The figure of the wounded Gallic warrior, leaning on his arm, expresses all the nobility and dignity of the ancient hero. The characteristic attributes--sword, shield, torc, and drapery--are found in relief on its base, reinforcing the historical iconography of the scene. The Dying Galatian is one of the most emblematic sculptures of Hellenistic art. Erected in the 3rd century BC to celebrate the victory of Attalus I of Pergamon over the Galatians, the original work is famous for its expressive treatment, the nobility of the

Dealer

Galerie Beaulieu

Généraliste

Mobile : 0613903899

Bordeaux 33000

vanquished, and the psychological depth that the sculptor imbues in the warrior. Rediscovered in Rome in the 18th century, the sculpture became a major reference for Neoclassical artists. Very good condition, with a chip on the base.

Dimensions: - Height 37 cm - Width 69 cm -

Depth 30 cm Serpentine marble sculpture o

Dying Galatian o Dying Gaul o Antique sculpture

o Green marble o Neoclassical sculpture o

Hellenistic art o Classical decorative object o

Decorative sculpture o Antique statue o

High-quality antique reproduction o Gallic warrior o Collector's sculpture