Description

This small 19th-century seascape, executed in oil on canvas (33 × 24 cm), from the Napoleon III period, delicately captures the soft, misty atmosphere of an old port. In the foreground, a sailboat glides calmly across a gently choppy sea, while other ships stand out against the horizon in a green and blue light typical of Romantic seascapes of this era. The fine, slightly cracked brushstrokes of age enhance the scene's authentic charm. Although the signature is not visible, the composition reveals a confident hand, attentive to the interplay of light and the silhouettes of ships. This small format possesses a striking presence, ideal for a classic interior or a collection dedicated to 19th-century seascapes.
