Description

A superb pair of Chinese paintings executed in ink and colors on silk, depicting two refined scenes of court life: noble ladies accompanied by their attendants, playing music, conversing, or strolling in a pavilion garden. A delicate work, rich in detail, typical of the Canton or Shanghai schools of painting at the end of the 19th century. Each painting bears a calligraphic inscription and a red seal, indicating a dedication and the signature of a regional artist. The silk exhibits natural aging, consistent with its age: a uniform patina, minor marginal alterations, and slight undulations due to the tension of the support. The overall effect remains perfectly legible and decorative. China, traditional painting workshops. Period: late 19th century. Height: 53 cm. Width: 43 cm.
