Louis XVI Half-moon Console Table

15 000 EUR

Period : 18th century

Condition : Très bon état

Material : Gilted wood

Description

This stunning Louis XVI half-moon console table from the late 18th century expresses the typical elegance of the neoclassical style, a work of great Neapolitan cabinetmaking. The finely carved and lacquered wooden frame features fluted, tapered legs distinguished by their linearity and harmonious proportions. The white statuary marble top, with its characteristic semicircular shape, is meticulously finished and enhanced by a decorative border reminiscent of classical motifs. The frieze beneath the top is enriched with sculpted rosette details and geometric motifs, distinctive elements of the Louis XVI style, enhancing the symmetry and refinement of the entire piece. The light-toned patinated finish gives the console table a timeless appeal, making it ideal for both classic settings and more
