Description

Hussar officer's shako, circa 1813. First Empire. The body is made of cardboard covered in black felt, 22 cm high, edged at the top with a 3.5 cm wide black silk velvet braid and at the bottom with a 3 cm wide black silk velvet band, with a gilt brass tightening buckle at the back. The crown is made of patent leather, 25.5 cm in diameter. The visor is made of black patent leather on top and green waxed leather underneath, edged with a gilt brass band folded over the outer edge in a rounded shape. The visor is 6 cm wide. A large tricolored braid cockade (scarlet, silver, blue), 9.5 cm in diameter, is sewn onto the front of the body, with a gilt brass half-bell button sewn in the center. This button secures a gold braid trim. The chin straps, each composed of a black velvet chin band covered
