Description

Large,
hand-thrown, glazed earthenware bowl
Hand-thrown on a wheel, with twin lug handles.
These are practical for lifting when full; typical in traditional cookware. The glaze inside shows heavy use which adds character and indicates that it has been used for food preparation and serving over the years.

Ochre/yellow interior and brown exterior with some greenish patches.

It has a wide, shallow profile typical of Mediterranean cooking pots or Balkan or Eastern European glazed bowls.

47 cm in diameter and 15 cm high., 2,7 kg

Late 19th century cookware
