Martin Hubrecht (1892-1965) - Oil on hardboard - View of St. Malo. Oil on hardboard depicting a view of Saint-Malo, specifically the Rue du Boyer. Signed lower right. Dating from 1958.

Martin Hubrecht (full name: Charles Marie Martin Hubrecht) was a French painter known for his watercolors and oil paintings. Initially, his works were in a rather restrained realist style. Then, at the end of the 1920s, he underwent a transformation: he adopted what has been called "Hubrechtian" painting--a kind of "rationalized Impressionism." His canvases include urban views (cities, streets, bridges), landscapes, but also scenes that were sometimes socially engaged--he depicted the working class and everyday life, often imbued with realism and a certain critical perspective on society.
