Description

Large oil on panel signed by Jean-Gabriel Domergue (1889-1962): "Sensual Nude of a Woman with a Scarf." Against a light blue background, a three-quarter portrait of a slender, young, nude woman with curly hair. Her upper body is upright and slightly bent forward, her arms raised, holding a white scarf. She has bright red lips and closed eyes; her face is turned to her right, as if averting itself from the viewer's perspective. Dimensions: Unframed 80.7 x 65.2 cm. Framed 95 x 80 cm. In very good condition, with an elegant giltwood frame. Signed Jean-Gabriel Domergue. Authenticated by Mr. Noé Willer, expert on the artist. A certificate of authenticity will be provided to the buyer. Jean-Gabriel Domergue's favorite subject is women; he defines himself as "the inventor of the pin-up," establishing the Parisian woman as an emblem and changing the perception of women. In 1920, he introduced a new aesthetic by representing Parisian elegance and the refined taste and fashion of the time. His women are slender with long necks, depicted in bust portraits, and rendered in vibrant colors to convey a certain graceful nonchalance. Domergue's women have a close connection to the bourgeoisie and the tastes of this elite. Upon request, I can arrange delivery for you in France and internationally.
