Description

A substantial pitcher...One of the largest I've found! Blown glass, worked while hot...And an applied handle...In perfect condition, just perhaps a few imperfections (bubbles in the glass) which are charming traces of the glassmaker, reflecting the period of manufacture! And a few scratches from use! From the 18th century, around 1770...French production...Perhaps from the Southwest! It holds at least 5 liters! Slightly taller on one side, with a difference of 0.6 centimeters...Weight... 1.772 kg
