Description

Large cat with a mark under one front paw.
Hand-decorated blue enamel from the Louvière pottery, 20th century. The feline is in a reclining position, its tail raised and curved backward. It is entirely painted in shades of blue, with a uniform floral motif composed of yellow, pink, and green flowers distributed across the entire surface. The model features stylized features, particularly in the face and proportions, giving the cat a somewhat realistic appearance. This ceramic piece is in impeccable condition; a rare find.
