Description

This sculptural, pebble-shaped lamp belongs to the iconic series that André Cazenave developed starting in the late 1960s. The artist-designer explored the idea of a mineral light fixture, blending nature and artifice. Made of polyester resin enriched with stone powder, the piece diffuses a soft, organic light that seems to emanate from the material itself. This type of lamp, which has become iconic of 20th-century French design, is now highly sought after by collectors for its timeless aesthetic and its ability to integrate seamlessly into both contemporary interiors and vintage settings.
