Description

This extraordinary, very large carved candlestick from the mid-18th century possesses a striking decorative presence due to its size and ornamentation in pure Louis XV style. True to its period, with a beautiful patina of age, this beautiful and complete piece of ornamental sculpture is of considerable decorative interest. A high-quality piece, likely used on the altar of a grand church or cathedral, given the magnificence of its carving, this period piece is untouched, retaining its history and proud bearing. The wood is probably linden, whitewashed and gilded with a patina.
