Bronze sculpture, according to Barye, in very good condition (minor scratches from use), certainly end 19th or early 20th century, with a brown patina. Signed "Barye" on the base, with on the reverse the foundry mark Coutenot & Lelièvre "C&L déposée / Bronze garantie au titre" (Bronze guaranteed to the required standard). The chasing of the "Standing Borzoi with Head Turned" is very fine; it rests on an extremely decorative base (with numerous relief elements). Antoine-Louis Barye (1796-1875) was a French sculptor and painter, famous for his animal works with remarkable realism and expressiveness. He is considered one of the greatest masters of 19th-century animal sculpture.
