Description

Elegant and finely crafted, this jewelry box from the Napoleon III period perfectly embodies the refinement of the Second Empire. Made of black lacquered wood, it is sumptuously edged with iridescent mother-of-pearl inlays that catch the light and highlight the richness of its decoration. The lid and sides feature superb hand-painted bouquets of roses in warm, delicate tones, typical of mid-19th-century French decorative arts. A gilt monogram in the center of the lid adds a further touch of distinction. The interior, lined with quilted pale blue satin, offers a luxurious contrast to the dark, glossy exterior. This original finish, both soft and elegant, testifies to the quality of jewelry boxes from the Napoleon III period. Resting on a molded base and enhanced with gilt trim, the box presents a harmonious and
