Description

Butter Mold in Black Wax from 1737, round in shape with the coat of arms of the great Austrian imperial weapon or the double-headed eagle crowned with two swords between its legs, inside which we find a shield containing minor weapons probably linked to the chest. vassal families. At the ends of the sign we find the initials IG - S at the top and M - S at the bottom with the date 1737. The edge is corded with leaf motifs. The mold has a hook at the top end and shows signs of string wear on the side edges which likely allowed it to be hung up when not in use. In good condition with a slight bend as shown in the photos, Austro-Hungarian origin.
